The Great Sale of House Furnishings and China Is Drawing Big Crowds

Faster than fell the snow flakes did our Pneumatic Cash System record sales yesterday, and the House Furnishings Department was king. Never has such selling been known in this city. A steady stream of buyers all day. Wagons loaded with goods, running far into the night. Everyone busy—and yet the perfect store system showed no particular agitation. Today the great selling continues—and you'll be here, of course, to buy and to listen to the music—for Bauer's Orchestra plays today. A revolutionized Tuesday—to be sure. But it's revolution that will save you money—every time—and lots of it.

DIALECT COMEDY.

"Ole Olson" seems to possess the happy faculty of having the very thing that everybody wants—good, clean, honest play, cleverly written with bright dialogue and little bits of pathos here and there, just enough to render the dramatic morsel palatable and in addition a startling dash of sentimentalism to digest the meal. This is the reason that theatres have been packed everywhere this season to see "Ole." The great bicycle race has created the biggest kind of sensation for it is not only a novelty but a reality.
